PLAYERS VOTE CLEAN BALL:

DECIDE OF THEIR OWN ACCORD TO SUPPRESS ROWDYISM.

Protective Association Are Willing to Meet Magnates Half Way in Reforming the Game-They Are Also Prepared for Trouble if League Men Refuse to Treat With Them. If the members of the Protective Association of Professional Baseball Players, who held a meeting in the Sturtevant House yesterday. mean what they say, at least one benefit may be derived from their organization. After discussing many points at issue the delegates, having listened to a sensible talk by their attorney, Harry Taylor of Buffalo, voted to abolish rowdyfam of all kinds upon the field, includ-ing kicking against umpires' decisions, and also agreed to hurry the play so that the games in future will not be tiresomely long drawn out. Secretary Hugh Jennings, first baseman of the champion Brooklyns, explained the action of the association in the following manner to a reporter of THE SUN.

sary to bring the game back to its former popularity. We are ready to meet the magnates able to abolish most of them ourselves. We have also agreed to stop kicking at umpires and to refrain from indulging in other rows that have hurt the national game. In a word, the players have come to a realizing sense that unless baseball is reformed it will sink so low in the estimation of the public that it will be impossible for us to draw good salaries and for the club owners to make any money. We do | ble. not say that all of the blaine rests with the players. The magnates have many things to do to win back the confidence of the public, but so far as the Protective Association is concerned, you can say for it in The Sux that the cerned, you can say for it in THE SUN that the players want to do the right thing and are anxious to please the public." Yesterday's meeting was of particular importance, for it is the last that will be held until definite information is received from the National League that a conference with a representative committee composed of Lawyer sentative committee composed of Lawyer Taylor, President Zimmer and Secretary Jen-nings of the Association will be granted. The players assembled at the hotel at 2 o clock and went into session immediately. The different teams were represented as follows:

President Zimme: took the chair and Seccretary Jennings it formed the members that the American and Eastern League players had formally been an atted to the Association; that they had paid their dues and were now in good standing. Jennings also said that the American League and the Lastern League mem had appointed Grievance committees of their own which would take care of all cases that were to be considered before they were placed before the executive officers of the Association. It was explained, too, that while the American and Lastern members were entitled to attend the regular meetings of the Association they would not do so, having decided to leave everything to the originator of the movement. In regard to the dues which are being collected, it was said that every player elected to membership had been assessed in inition feet that every National League player had agreed to pay $2 a month dues all the year round, while every American and Eastern League player would turn into the Treasury $12 a year. Of the National League players 136 are already registered, which includes everybody except Fred Clarke, the manager of the Pittsburgs.

is a see already registered, which includes everybody except Fred Clarke, the manager of the Pittsburgs.

Then came the most interesting topic of the meeting. It related to the method to be empleyed toward securing a conference with the National League magnates at their annual conference in December. At a previous meeting, the grievances of the pla ers had been so thoroughly discussed that they did not come up again. So, after a conference Committee, consisting of Taylor, Zimmer and Jennings had been selected, the question was gone into at length. Some of the players said that they had consulted with their club owners and had received assurance that the League would grant a conference, but there were others who seemed to feel that such action on the part of the magnates could not be looked for. At any rate Lawrer Taylor was empowered to notify the National League men just what the association had been formed for, what the players feel that the League should grant, and also formall ask for a hearing at the annual meeting. Taylor made an address to the players, which in our twest.

employers. We do not want friction, and we will do our best to avoid it, but if it is forced upon us then it will be time to decide what action to take "It was pointed out to various players that if the National League men should refuse to treat with the Protective Association's committee, a move could be made that might bring the magnates to terms. While the players do not desire a rebellion of any kind, they feel that should the League by ignoring them force the association to take radical action, there would be an opportunity to join a movement to establish another big baseball league to include the leading cities now occupied by the National League, which takes in the largest cities in the West, has made so much progress this year, especially at Chicago, where it has a rival club, that there has been talk of extending its circuit to the East. The promoters of the American Association, who tried to start business last spring, have been planning all summer to put their scheme into effect this fall, and it is believed that if a combination should be made between the American League and the American Association, so that capital could be furnished to establish a national circuit, the Protective Association, controlling all the available baseball talent in the country, would be able to make this combination a success by joining hands with it.

The players believe that new clubs in Boston, Greater New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore or Washington in the East, and St. Louis, Cinnati, Chicago and Pittsburg in the West, with the best playing talent available, would be successful. So, feeling that they have the balance of power in their own hands, the players after yesterday's meeting were quite confident that the National League magnates would appreciate the situation and come to terms.

BOWLING.

One Delegate Causes Troub'e at Royal Ar-

canum League Meeting in Brooklyn. The Broodlyn Royal Arcanum Bowling league held its annual meeting on taturday pight at Trainor's, Gates and Reid avenues. It was the most exciting meeting n the history of the organization, and the obstinacy of one delegate came near precipitating an unpleasantness. De Witt Clinton Council was the chief cause of the trouble. It had failed to qualify last month and was dropped from the membership of the League. The delegates last night were willing to admit grant a conference, but there were others who seemed to feel that such action on the part of the magnates could not be looked for. At any rate Lawrer Taylor was empowered to notify the National League men just what the association had been formed for, what the players feel that the League should grant, and also formall ask for a hearing at the annual meeting. Taylor made an address to the players, which invart was:

"The National League has a mistaken idea that the Protective Association has been formed to work against it. We wish to work in harmony with the club owners and to save the game. The score: West indians, 132: Manhattan C. C. 62. The kings County Club had a close and well contested game with Brooklyn team B at Prospect Park, and won by the narrow margin of 7 runs after an exciting finish. This result was brought about by the bowling of G. W. Barnes and A. Nugent, who did all that was required of them at a critical point in the game. J. E. Mordaunt batted well for the winners and contributed a good innings of 21, while for Brooklyn A. Withers succeeded in getting top score with 24. The score: Kings County, 76; Brooklyn Team B. 68.

The Nelson Lodge C. C. visited Staten Island for a game with the Livingston F. C. and created considerable surprise by their good exhibition of batting. E. A. Skyne and R. W. Powell made a great stand for the first wicket and before a separation was effected the pair had put on 110 runs. Skyne scored twice as fast as his partner, and was credited with 63, while Powell added 31. F. P. Rogers, W. Kelloud and T. Newman all batted well for their respective scores of 172 for six wickets. The islanders then succeeded in holding the wickets for the rest of the afternoon, and when time was called they had scored 120 for 172 four wickets. R. E. THE CORRETT-M'COY FIGHT.

John Considine and the Kid Deny That the Battle Was a Fake. The mysterious departure of Jim Corbett who, it is said, is now on his way to Europe, and the declaration by his wife that his recent bout with Kid McCoy at Madison Square Garden was not fought strictly on the level was discussed with a good deal of vim in sporting circles yesterday. Friends of Corbett who seem to be legion just now have left nothing undone to defend the ex-champion, and they say without reserve that Mrs. Corbett's story is an untruth. They steadfastly declare that the accusation was prompted by a jealous and McCoy issued statements yesterday relaknow why Mrs. Corbett does not show better proof that the mill was a "fake" and convince husband out of mera spite.

"Any person who saw the fight at the Garden," said Considine to THE SUN reporter, on the Speedway for the first time since he not know what he is taiking about. conduct toward her.

McCoy hast night gave out the appended statement:

Owing to the stories published to day emanating from Mrs. Corbett that my late contest with Mr. Corbett was a "fake," I feel that it is necessary, in justice to my friends and admirers as well as to myself, to state that her accusations are absolutely false and have no foundation whatsoever, and they are simply the utterances of a jealous woman. I am sure that the public would not or could not believe any stories circulated by Mrs. Corbett when they can plainly see that on the face of them the motive is pure malice and spite work to revenge herself on Mr. Corbett, who, she admits, has deserted and mistreated her, and the old quotation, "Hell knowth no fury like a woman's scorm, seems to be applicable in this instance. I did not have a representative to enter into any negotiations with Mr. Corbett or any representative of his to have him "lay down" to me, as I would not take his or any other man's word in such an agreement. I am unable to see where either of us could have gained any pressing or money by being defeated. I fought a bad and group kind of a fight by smothering up and not being the asgressor. It was my intention to the corbett out, and when he was in that condition to beat him. I was in good condition and unhurt up to the time I received the hard punch in the stomach, a spot where it doesn't take a hard punch to incapacitate one from being unable to fight for the few seconds allowed to recover. I want to state now, as I did mediately after the contest, that I was defrated fairly and squarely, and have no one to blame but myself. But I still believe that I can heat Mr. Corbett, and hope some time in the near future to have another chance to prove it. I did intend to leave the city for a few weeks' vacation, but owing to faise rumors now affoat I have dedded to remain, and can be found at my place of business any day.

Many sporting men suggest that it would not be a bad idea to have a public inquiry remy place of business any day.

Many sporting men suggest that it would not be a bad idea to have a public inquiry regarding the supposed unfair termination of the battle, to ascertain whether Mrs. Corbett is justified in denouncing it as not squarely fought. A similar inquiry was held in reference to Corbett's mill with Tom Sharkey at the Lenox A. C. a few years ago. Senator Timothy D. Sullivan fostered the idea at the time, but the proceedings did not develop anything of a sensational nature.

RETURN OF FAST HORSES FOR THE FALL CAMPAIGN. Nathan Straus Gives Freddy His First Brush

Interesting to a Big Crowd of Onlookers. Many of the road riders who have been away during the summer were on the Speedway yesterday. They were attracted to the city by the matinee at the Empire City track on Saturday and were glad to look over the big drive again. A few have returned their horses woman who wishes to even scores with Corbet!. to the city stables, but the majority will not Both John Considine, Corbett's partner be settled for the season's driving for two weeks Dr. H. One of the finest brushes of the day was between Alves, driven by Nathan Straus, and David Harrum, Col. Taylor's brown gelding, driven by A. E. Perren, of Buffalo. Both gentlemen were behind good horses and they made an exciting race. Alves, however, had the most sreed and won. Bernard Kearns, with his gelding Drex, had quite an interesting argument with Freeland,2:174, driven by E. F. Pierce. Both horses were steady and it was a good race all the way. Freeland won by half a length. Drex also had two great brushes with T. N. B. Each one was a drive from start to finish, with both drivers using the whip. Dr. Randell's gray was the victor.

Another good three-cornered brush was between Mr. Pirung's Alice B. C. C. Floyd's Malzour and Mr. Wildy's Girlle. For half the distance it was about an even thing, when diffile began to drop back and Malzour pushed his nose in the lead. Alice B. could do no better which gave out at critical points. A new team on the drive which went like the wind, excited a great deal of attention. The turnout is the property of Mr. McCormick of Poughteepsie, who came here for a day's driving. It was his first appearance on the Speedway. The horses he drove were Genie L. pacer, 2:184, and Little George, trotter, that was driven a trial mile over the Poughkeepsie track a few days ago in 2:184. They are not regularly driven to pole. HIGH DIVES AT YORKVILLE BATHS Ellis Outclasses Holden-Fast Swimming by Miss Ethel Golding of Bath Beach.

In an impromptu competition at the Yorkville swimming bath yesterday William Ellis, a motorman, took the edge off the laurels of Arthur C. Holden, who styles himself the cham-pion high diver of the world. Ellis is the man who successfully made the dive from the roof of Madison Square Garden into the swimming tank after an attempt at the feat ended in the death of Prof. Tom Donaldson about eighteen months ago. Holden was advertised as one of the attractions of the swimming carnival held under the auspices of the A. A. U., of which another feature was a swimming race between women. He was scheduled to dive from a platform said to be 100 feet from the water level, but which did not apparently exceed 70 feet, into the East River, which, according to old residents of the district, was only about four and a half feet deep at the time of the diving. Holden ran down the ladder without making the dive. This was about 4 o'clock. An hour later, when Holden was telling the reporters that he must wait until a quarter after for the rising tide to come up another inch. Ellis, who had been smuggled into the bath, ran quickly along the approach ladder to the platform and with scarcely a moment's hesitation made a grand shallow dive. plause of the thousands who watched the dive from the bath, pavilions and East River Park reached Holden in the back room and a moment on the grounds of the Essex County Country Club at Orange, on Sept. 27, 28 and 29, the State championship golf tournament will take place among the members of an association composed of the following clubs: Morris County, Essex County, Lakewood, North Jersey, Englewood, Yantacaw, Plainfield, Montclair, Jersey City and Baltusrol. Prizes will be given for the champion player, best gross score, prize for the best team of five men, and a handicap prize, the latter to be played for on the last day. In this contest some of the best known players will take part and the event is looked forward to with much interest in golfing circles. A meeting of the above named club will be held this week to complete the arrangoments for the tournament. greatly chagrined this did not change Holden's plans and a few minutes later he essayed the feat. Holden poised himself for a few minutes on the platform, and then he sprang off. After the outward spring his body came down in good style for about half the distance. Then his legs opened, and while the women uttered little screams and the men held their breath, the direction turned, and he swerved inward, while his leps moved in an ungainly effort to recover his balance. A second later and his body struck the water head on for the bottom, and those who had seen Donaldson dive to his death feared a repetition of the incident. A moment later Holden appeared and climbed into one of the boats, which had moved to the spot where he went down. The verdict of nearly all the experts present was that Ellis fairly won the honors of the day.

In the other events on the programme the greatest interest centred in the women's swimming race of fifty yards, in which there were the following competitors:

Adel Scheiner, Clara Miller, Louise Sat, Frances L.

Adel Scheiner, Clara Miller, Louise Sat. Frances L. Layer, Rittle Waller, Mamie Barry, Maggie Burke, Ethel Golding, Mrs. Jennie Cohen and Litzle Gun-

The race was practically a swim over for the young Bath Beach girl, Ethel Golding, who was attended by her mother. She cut through the water at a great rate, using a strong overhand stroke, and won by a length, which was half the distance of the race. The winner who is only 19 years old, issued a challenge to swim any woman for the champio ship of the world. B. Shea of Bath Beach win the final heat of the 100-yard novice race by 8 yards. The e-were a score of starters in the event, weeded out in three trial heats. The concluding event was a relay race between, as the announcer put it, a picked team of the Knickerbocker A. C. and a scrub team from Bath Beach. Owing to the loafing tactles of Don M. Reeder, the former champion, in the second relay, the Knickerbocker quartette cut the finish so fine that the judges declared it a dead heat in 3 minutes 2 seconds. In swimming the heat off the "cherry diamond" team cut loose in earnest and showed its real quality by winning by a length in 2 minutes 48 seconds. The summaries: The summaries:
